DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (PH.D)

In India, generally, a master's degree is required to gain admission to a doctoral program. In the last few years, there have been many changes in the rules relating to a PhD in India. According to the new rules described by UGC, universities must have to conduct entrance exams in general ability and the selected subject. After clearing these tests, the shortlisted candidates need to appear for an interview with the available supervisor/guide. After successful completion of the coursework, the students are required to give presentations of the research proposal (plan of work or synopsis) at the beginning, submit progress reports, give a pre-submission presentation, and finally defend the thesis in an open defence viva-voce.
